HONGKONG, FEBRUARY 22ND, 1913.

"PRIVET COUGH"—the name given to catarrhal trouble due to inhalation of the pollen of the flowering privet—is a well-recognized early summer ailment in several of the Treaty ports of China. At Shanghai every year the Municipal Council publishes a notification asking the public to cut down the privet growing on their property or remove the flower before it opens, for the general opinion in Shanghai is that the early summer (June) catarrhal troubles are due to privet, and the ailment has consequently been called "privet cough." It has seemed strange to many people familiar with "privet cough" in Shanghai and elsewhere that so little has been heard of the ailment in Hongkong, where privet has flourished in annually increasing abundance for many years. We have had the opportunity of pursuing an interesting correspondence on this subject initiated last year by a well-known resident who states that for some years past he has noticed that during the privet season great numbers of people suffer from prolonged colds either in the throat, chest or nose, and he is convinced, at any rate in his own case, that this is entirely due to the dust of privet. He accordingly brought the matter to the notice of the Principal Civil Medical Officer. Dr. BELL, who was filling that position at the time, replied that his experience in the Colony, extending over twenty-five years did not support the theory that "privet trees" are responsible for the symptoms described, which are commonly known as "hay fever," though he would not say that an occasional, though rare, case of individual idiosyncrasy might not occur. Dr. BELL, however, submitted his correspondent's letter to the local British Medical Association and the general opinion of the members coincided with the views already expressed by Dr. BELL. Their verdict was that irritation from privet was not at all common in Hongkong, though privet had existed here many years and that one isolated case did not afford sufficient evidence to condemn privet as the causal agent. Inquiry of the Army doctors elicited similar replies, accompanied by a suggestion that the flowering season of the privet in Hongkong coincides with considerable variations in temperature which alone would suffice to account for the prevalence "colds." One fact of importance which is brought out in this correspondence is that the only privet found in Hongkong is the Ligustrum sinense. In Shanghai two kinds are found, but according to Dr. STANLEY the large ordinary kind Ligustrum lucidum "almost certainly does not cause catarrh," while the Ligustrum sinense—the only kind found in Hongkong—"may cause catarrh." Dr. STANLEY, it may be remarked, is not convinced that the general opinion in Shanghai is correct in regarding privet as the cause of symptoms resembling those of "hay fever." If it is then the conditions in Hongkong are eminently favourable to the prevalence of the complaint because the only species of the privet plant which may cause catarrh is growing here in increasing quantities every year. It will have been noticed that there is a sharp conflict of opinion as to the prevalence of this irritating complaint. On the one hand we have the statement of a layman that "great numbers of people" suffer from catarrhal trouble during the flowering season of the privet; and on the other hand we have the doctors saying that it is not within their experience. But this, says the layman, is easily explained by the fact that the sick-ness is not of such a nature as would make one seek medical advice; it being more disagreeable and irritating than distressing, and it is suggested that unless some steps are taken to limit the growth of privet, the shrub in this climate will spread to such an extent that "its control may become an expensive matter." It seems to us that the subject is worthy of further investigation. People do not rush to hospitals or call in the doctor on account of irritating catarrhal trouble even when it is persistent, and if the complaint is common among residents who live in districts where the privet shrub flourishes, it ought not to be difficult to enlist the co-operation of such in an effort to have the question thoroughly investigated. In Hongkong we believe the flowering season for privet begins in April, so that there is no time to be lost if the effort is to be made this year.

His Honour, Sir William Rees Davies, K.C., Chief Justice, and Lady Rees Davies are expected to return to-day.

The Fire Brigade turned out last night on receiving a summons from Pottinger Street, but the outbreak was nothing more than a chimney on fire.

The ordinary half-yearly meeting of shareholders of the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation takes place in the City Hall to-day at noon.

Mr. Gerald Aubrey Goodman, Attorney-General of the Barbadoes, succeeds Mr. Thomas de M. L. Bradell, the Attorney-General of the Straits Settlements.

The Dallas Company arrived yesterday from Singapore, where they had a successful season. They open to-night at the Theatre Royal with "The Glad Eye."

Yesterday afternoon a team from the Y.M.C.A. met the Hongkong Chess Club in a friendly match at the rooms of the former. The Y.M.C.A. won by 3 games to 2.

A Chinese child, aged three years, has been removed to the Kwong Wo Hospital suffering from bruises on the face caused by being knocked down by a runaway horse, the owner of which is unknown.

The Sourabaya Courant reports that a strike of 20 school children out of a class of 30 took place at the first class native school at Bodjonegoro, the complaint being that one of their number was roughly handled.

One of the results of the recent talk about the integrity of subordinates in the municipal sanitary service is apparent, says the Straits Times, in the decoration of all sanitary inspectors with metal badges. These are attached to the inspector's coat and bear his number in both English and Chinese numerals. The idea, presumably, is to facilitate identification in case of complaints.

The cutting of the queue has had one result in a very large increase in the number of barbers' shops in Kuala Lumpur, several of the old gambling shops having been re-opened as such. Tailoring, too, has received a great impetus in the extended use of European clothing among the Chinese.

The Bishop of Victoria has returned from his visitation of the Chinese Mission Churches in the Canton Delta. He met the church members at Shekai, Kongmoon, Shui Hing and other places and held several confirmations. He was accompanied by the Rev. Mok Shau Tsang. The Revs. A. D. Stewart, C. I. Blanchett, and J. O. Jenkins were also present at some of the centres. The Bishop found the country quiet and the church work very encouraging.

THE DIRECTORY AND CHRONICLE

The Directory and Chronicle for the Far East, which has been annually issued from the Office of the Hongkong Daily Press for the past fifty-one years, is now published for the current year, and is on sale at all the leading booksellers stores throughout the East. The portly tome in the familiar red covers is so well-known as to render superfluous in this notice a detailed statement of the contents of the book. New arrivals in the East will find a full list of contents given in an advertisement appearing in another column. It is sufficient here to say that the "Chronicle" portion of the large volume contains the treaties existing between the Eastern nations and Foreign countries, as well as much other information useful to merchants and residents generally. The Directory portion contains descriptions of every country, east of India and of every Treaty port or commercial centre where foreigners reside, together with a list of foreign firms and their staffs. The descriptions are each year brought up-to-date, and, as in the larger of the two volumes published, a coloured plan is given of the principal ports. The Directory is one of great use and interest to the tourist as well as to the resident. The alphabetical list, at the end of the book, contains upwards of twenty thousand names, and, in compliance with suggestions received from Europe and America, the directories of the principal ports have been supplemented of late years by classified lists of trades and professions. In short, the Directory and Chronicle is a mine of information regarding the East and is recognised as an indispensable requisite of every business or professional office of importance in Asia.

A DANGEROUS PRACTICE.

Last evening an exciting scene was witnessed on the departure of one of the Star ferry launches from the Hongkong wharf about six o'clock. A young German made to board the launch after the gangway was drawn up, but missed his footing and fell into the water. It was feared that he would be crushed between the wharf and the launch, but fortunately he was safely brought on board with the assistance of a life buoy.

JUNK RUN DOWN BY STEAMER.

The master of a licensed fishing junk, who states that he had a crew of eight on his boat of about 500 piculs capacity, has reported to the police authorities at Aberdeen that while sailing his junk off Tam Kun Tan, near Lamma Island, a Japanese steamer collided with and sunk his junk. Two children, aged six and eight years respectively, were drowned, and their bodies were not recovered. The steamer stopped and lowered a boat, assisting to rescue the other members of the crew. The fisherman's family was subsequently conveyed to Aberdeen by another fishing junk. All the man's tackle and personal property, valued at $2,000, was lost.

BARRIE'S GREATEST PLAY.

On Monday night the Dallas Comedy Company will give "What Every Woman Knows" at the Theatre Royal, an emphatic contrast to the boisterous farce, "The Glad Eye," with which they open their season to-night. As a piece of dramatic literature, as a study of character and as a delightful entertainment it has had no equal on the London stage for many years past. King George witnessed the play on two occasions during its thirteen months' run at the Duke of York's Theatre, London, and in the stalls of the theatre every Saturday night during session many members of Parliament might be seen thoroughly enjoying the play, which has its political as well as human interest.

THE AFFAIRS OF MESSRS. ARNDT & CO.

At the Supreme Court yesterday, before the Puisne Judge (Mr. H. H. J. Gompertz), Mr. R. C. Faithfull mentioned an action against Messrs. Arndt & Co.

Mr. Otto Kong Sing said he believed Mr. Shentor (of Messrs. Deacon, Looker, Deacon & Harston) was acting for Arndt & Co. in all these matters. A composition had been drawn up and most of the creditors had signed. He did not know whether Mr. Faithfull had any notice of it.

Mr. Faithfull—I have not officially, but I have seen it in the papers.

Mr. Kong Sing—I am given to understand that the creditors of the Company have entered into a scheme.

His Lordship—Have they been served? Mr. Faithfull—Yes, my Lord, I understand so.

THE COURT CARDS.

Great interest is being displayed over the approaching visit of the Court Cards and their Joker, who made such a wonderfully good impression here on their former visit. This will be their farewell season, as they have engagements booked far ahead in other parts of the world. A feature of the season will be the inclusion of entirely new programmes. These have created a furore in Shanghai, where, indeed, the company has been playing to record business. Not for many years has the capacity of the Lyceum Theatre been taxed as has been the case during their stay there. Hundreds were turned away every night, and it is doubtful whether there has ever been such a thoroughly successful and popular combination of artists touring the East as the Court Cards. Advance notices from Shanghai dwell upon the artistic manner in which the whole entertainment is carried out, and the musical ability of each member seems to have made a great impression.

THE EDISON KINOTOPHONE.

Messrs. P. A. Lapicque & Company, the managers of the Edison Kinotophone Agency in Hongkong and the Far East, ask us to correct an impression that may have been created by the publication of incorrect statements attributed to Mr. Thomas A. Edison, the inventor of the wonderful "move-talking machine." It was stated that Mr. Edison declared that it was his belief that the end of the present legitimate stage is at hand, as a result of his newest invention. Such a statement purporting to emanate from Mr. Edison does him a great injustice, inasmuch as he is known throughout the world as not only a great inventor, but also as a man of unusually modest character, and, through the very nature of his work as a practical man, would be the last to make such an extravagant statement, based upon his perfection of the "Kinotophone." That he may have said, "the invention meant the end of the Cinematograph Stage" is quite possible.

BILLIARDS.

Mr. Alec Taylor was seen to advantage at the Hongkong Club on Thursday night in a contest of 800 up in which he conceded four of the Club members 400 points start. The conditions were that each amateur retired on Taylor scoring 200 points, a partner filling the breach. The professional scored an easy victory, his four opponents only aggregating 121. Taylor's best breaks were 103, 87, 66, 67, 59 (twice), and 52. Scores at the finish were—Taylor 800; Amateurs, 521. Taylor is engaged to-night at the Peak Hotel in a match of 800 up, in which he concedes Mr. E. A. S. Fowler 400 in 800, commencing at 9 p.m.

SUFFRAGETTE TERRORISM.

FURTHER OUTRAGES.

LONDON, February 21st.

At daybreak on Thursday morning the tea pavilion in Kew Gardens was discovered on fire and was completely gutted, cotton wool and shavings saturated with paraffin oil making the flames spread with great fury. The police formed a cordon round the burning building and arrested two women, Misses Locke and Lenton, aged twenty-two. They were subsequently charged at Richmond with having set fire to the pavilion, and were remanded. They behaved most riotously in Court, and declared that if they were refused bail they would refuse to take food. The Chairman retorted that the Bench was not going to be intimidated, whereupon Miss Locke threw papers and a book at the Chairman. The police intervened.

When arrested the women said that they were in possession of shavings and paraffin. Beside the pavilion was found a paper with the words "Orchids can be destroyed, but not women's honour."

LETTERS DESTROYED.

THE FRENCH PRESIDENT.

LONDON, February 21st.

President Poincaré has addressed a message to Parliament which is remarkable for its vigour and firmness of tone. He states that the Republic has recently furnished a fresh proof of its vitality, and they must exercise care in maintaining the country's financial power and do their utmost in other ways to ensure universal respect for their national dignity and thereby benefit the cause of peace abroad. It was only possible for the nation to be effectively pacific if it were always prepared for war. They must recoil from no effort and no sacrifice to consolidate and strengthen the army and navy.

Reuter's correspondent at St. Petersburg telegraphs that as a further sign of the friendliness between France and as an expression of his personal admiration for M. Poincaré, the Tsar has presented the President with the Order of St. Andrew.

THE TOKYO FIRE.

LONDON, February 21st.

Reuter's correspondent at Tokyo telegraphs that a fire broke out in the Salvation Army Hall in Kanda ward, and it is officially announced that 3,300 buildings were gutted. The damage exceeds £1,500,000. The flames fanned by a strong breeze involved the whole quarter, and defied the firemen and troops. Kanda is the student quarter, and many schools and colleges were destroyed. Fifteen thousand people are homeless.

UNHAPPY EX-PRESIDENT.

LONDON, February 21st.

A message from Mexico City reports that ex-President Madero, his wife and family were just departing for Europe, when Madero was detained and charged with being responsible for the deaths of various opponents.

ALLEGED SPY AT PORTSMOUTH.

LONDON, February 21st.

The German hunchback arrested at Portsmouth on suspicion of being a spy is a dentist named Klare. He was brought before the magistrates on Wednesday and remanded. The police deposed to, taking a confidential naval book on torpedoes from his bag.

THE CHORLEY BYE-ELECTION.

LONDON, February 21st.

The bye-election at Chorley occasioned by Lord Balcarras succeeding his father in the House of Lords resulted as under:—

Mr. Hibbert (U) 7573
Mr. Jackson (L) 5606

The Unionist poll has increased from the last election, as has also the Liberal poll, the majority having been reduced from 2,536 to 1,937.

THE BALKAN WAR.

The Montenegrin delegate, M. Popovitch, visited the British Foreign Office yesterday and said he had been instructed to intimate that Montenegro would rather risk annihilation than accept a compromise depriving her of Skutari.

It is authoritatively stated in St. Petersburg that Roumania and Bulgaria have accepted the mediation of the Powers.

THE SCOTT FUNDS.

LONDON, February 21st.

The King and Queen of Norway have subscribed fifty guineas to the Mansion House Scott Fund.

The City Corporation has contributed 100 guineas to the funds.

There was a big jump in the subscriptions to the Scott funds on Thursday, Lord Harold de Walden, Lord Strathcaine, Sir Edgar Speyer, and the Royal Geographical Society each contributing £1,000; Mr. Otto Beit, £200; Sir and Frederick and Lady Mirrieless £100.

DIPLOMATIC CHANGES.

LONDON, February 21st.

Reuter's correspondent at Paris telegraphs that M. Delcasse has been appointed Ambassador to St. Petersburg, replacing M. Louis, who has had to resign on account of ill-health.

M. Delcasse's appointment has surprised and delighted Paris. It is regarded as strengthening the Franco-Russian Alliance. The Tsar's approval of his nomination was the first news received by the Deputies. Though semi-official communications declare that the appointment is not connected with the relations with Germany the public regard it as in part a reply to the increase of German armaments, taken in conjunction with the outspokenness of the President's message concerning the army.

ARGENTINE CROPS.

LONDON, February 21st.

A message from Buenos Ayres states that the first official estimate of the maize crop is five million tons. The quality is equal to that of the preceding crop despite the drought.

THE "NEW ZEALAND."

LONDON, February 21st.

A message from Ascension states that the battleship New Zealand arrived there with her crew of 600. She is the largest warship that has been south of the Line and duly paid her tribute to Neptune. The Islanders defeated the crew in a cricket match.

FORTH BRIDGE BUILDER DEAD.

Sir William Arrol, the head of William Arrol & Co., the well-known Scottish engineers, is dead. Sir William built the Forth and Tay (present) bridges. He was 74 years of age.

RETURNING A LETTER.

An unusual offence against the Postal Ordinance was alleged against a Malay postman at Singapore last week. He was charged under section 27 of the Ordinance with having given back to a Bombay man a letter which the latter had posted at the General Post Office. Under the Ordinance, no letter, once posted, can be re-leased unless by the order of the Governor or an officer appointed by the Governor. Prisoner admitted handing over the letter, but said he acted in ignorance. His usual duty was to deliver mail notices, but on Thursday last he was placed behind the counter to assist in marking letters. While he was there a Bombay man came to the counter and said he wanted to get back a letter which he had just posted. Prisoner took a number of letters from a basket and the Bombay man chose his letter and took it away. It was the custom, added prisoner, that when an employee went to work behind the counter he was required to find security and be bound by an oath, and his duties were then explained to him. In prisoner's case, however, he was not sworn, did not find security, and was ignorant of the regulations that applied. His Worship imposed a fine of $5.

Rowland's Macassar Oil

FOR THE HAIR.

Preserves, Beautifies, Restores It. Closely resembles the natural oil in the hair, which nature provides for its preservation. No other article possesses this property. Without it the hair becomes dry, thin, and withers. Rowland's Macassar Oil is the only hair oil that gives the hair a beautiful gloss and shine. Good hair adds charm and interest to a plain face; every Toilet Table should possess this oil.

LADIES should always use it for their own hair and for their children's hair as it lays the foundation of a luxuriant growth. Golden Colour and the hair falls out. Of Store, Chemist, and ROWLAND'S, 47, Hatton Garden, London. Avoid cheap worthless imitations; buy only Rowland's.

THE REAL TRUTH ABOUT THE GAEKWAR.

WHAT LED UP TO THE DURBAR INCIDENT.

The following story of what led up to the Durbar incident is related in the Pull Mall Gazette by "One who knows better" in reply to a defence of the Gaekwar. In the Pull Mall Gazette of October 20th there appeared an article entitled: "The Gaekwar of Baroda: the Truth about the Durbar Story." By One Who Knows. Under ordinary circumstances, I should not have taken the trouble to correct the false impressions to which the article has given rise. But the statements made therein have been widely reprinted in the Indian native Press, and have been regarded as completely exonerating the Gaekwar, not only from all blame in connection with the Durbar incident, but from all criticism respecting the general relations of his Highness with the Government of India. The high authority of the Pull Mall Gazette is being invoked in India to prove that the Gaekwar has been unjustly attacked. My purpose is to show that there was ample ground for the accusations made at the time, and that the Gaekwar is by no means the innocent victim "One Who Knows" suggests him to be. For I also know, and I venture to say that I know very much better than the writer of the article in question.

The article begins by quoting certain statements publicly made. Of the Durbar story it was said that "the whole thing has been greatly exaggerated," and that the Gaekwar had an attack of "nerves." These statements are incorrect. The Gaekwar is admittedly a rather nervous man, but he has been a ruling Prince for over thirty years. He has vast experience of public ceremonial, and no more suffered from "nerves" at Delhi than the Durbar Herald. Whatever he did at the Durbar was not unconscious.

THE FIRST INDICATION.

"One Who Knows" says that before the Durbar the Gaekwar "ventured to offer his views at headquarters" as to the form of ceremony to be adopted, and that "this action gave offence." That is not the case. What gave offence was that when he arrived at Delhi he wrote letters to "headquarters" which were deliberately at variance with the form prescribed for ruling Princes desiring an interview with the Viceroy, a form which no one knows better than the Gaekwar. His Highness began as he meant to go on, and his studied informality was perhaps too gently corrected. He proceeded to discuss with other Princes the precise manner in which the act of homage to the King-Emperor was to be performed, but on Durbar Day the Gaekwar was the only ruler who disregarded the official injunctions, with which he had been explicitly acquainted. He knew the injunctions quite well, and had not hesitated to express his objections to them.

"One Who Knows" defends the Gaekwar for appearing at the Durbar in "a plain white garment," and says that this is the costume worn by his Highness "on ceremonial occasions." He further says that, having spent much time in England, the Gaekwar "is aware that the note of good breeding here is the opposite of ostentation." If that is the case, one would have expected the King-Emperor to be too well-bred to wear his crown. It is perfectly true that the Gaekwar usually wears "a plain white garment" in private life in India. He often affects the same "chaste simplicity" when it becomes his duty to attend any public ceremonial at which excited British personages are present. But in his own State, on occasion, he is wont to appear in much braver array. Those who wish to see a portrait of the Gaekwar as he is accustomed to present himself at times to his own people, may be recommended to turn to the Sketch of December 27th, 1911. They will see the Gaekwar in a uniform full uniform of his "army," a uniform which is neither very simple nor very chaste. They will see something else, too. They will see the Gaekwar wearing the insignia of an aide-de-camp to the King-Emperor, an honour he does not possess. They will further see him wearing the star of an "order" of his own State above the Star of India, and every Indian Prince understands the slight thus implied. He wore this same "order" in the presence of the King-Emperor at the Investiture. But perhaps the point about the costume is sufficiently disposed of when I say that at the 1903 Durbar the Gaekwar wore a white satin robe edged with gold, and the riband of the Star of India. In 1911 he elected to do homage to the King-Emperor in cheap white cotton, such as the clerks in his public offices would wear.

REMOVED HIS JEWELS.

Mention of orders brings me to the question of the decorations worn by the Gaekwar at the Delhi Durbar. "One Who Knows" asks us to believe that the Gaekwar wore no jewels because he was not accustomed to do so. At the 1903 Durbar he wore a "breast-plate" of a million sterling, as was duly recorded at the time. At the State Ball in 1903 he wore a chain of diamonds. The thing that damns the apologetic of "One Who Knows" is that the Gaekwar actually arrived at the King-Emperor's Durbar wearing jewels; but, for reasons best known to himself, before the King-Emperor arrived his Highness took them off. There are many who were present who can verify this statement. Was it "nerves" which prompted him to strip his cotton robe of jewels?

The Viceroy arrived at the amphitheatre twenty minutes before the King-Emperor. The programme laid down that everybody was to rise when his Excellency drove into the arena, and to remain standing until he had taken his place beneath the Imperial canopy. Everybody duly rose, save one man. At all that vast assemblage, one man remained defiantly seated. That one man was the Gaekwar of Baroda. Just as the Viceroy's carriage drew abreast of the spot where the Gaekwar was sitting, the British Resident at Baroda was observed to head down and say something to his Highness. The Gaekwar jumped up as if he had been shot, but almost instantly resumed his seat before the Viceroy had alighted from his carriage. A hundred thousand people, including the greatest Princes in India, were standing at that moment. Again one asks whether the action of the Gaekwar was due to "nerves."

THE INSULT TO THE KING-EMPEROR.

I come to the act of homage. The Nizam of Hyderabad made obeisance first. The Gaekwar came second. His Highness was carrying a stick. I know that one of his little affectations is to carry a stick; but would any member of the English Royal Family, any of the numerous Princes over whom King George is sovereign and sovereign Lord, dare to appear before the Monarch at a Levee in London with a stick in his hand? There is no Oriental warranty for such an act. Every one in India knows what the late Nizam would have done if even his heir had been audacious enough to appear before him in open Durbar armed with a stick.

The use of the stick was an act of effrontery, and so was the episode which followed. Instead of making the prescribed number of bows, and backing to the edge of the dais, the Gaekwar stroled up, dodged to his Majesty, took no notice of the Queen-Empress at all, turned his back on their Majesties (an unpardonable insult in East and West alike), walked off the dais, and went away twirling his stick. There was no mistake about his intentions, nor need I emphasise these statements. Thousands saw the act, hundreds of thousands saw the photograph. The facts are not disputed, even by the Gaekwar himself. According to "One Who Knows," his Highness says it was "a sheer mistake." But when he tore off his jewels, was that a mistake also?

FELLOW-PRINCES' ANGER.

After the Durbar was over the Gaekwar grew frightened at what he had done. Why was he frightened? Because other Indian princes, proud and loyal and chivalrous Rajputs, told him in fierce words what they thought of his conduct, said he had brought disgrace upon them all, and declared that he ought to receive the severest marks of the King-Emperor's displeasure. It was then that the Gaekwar really developed "nerves." Before any official notice had been taken of his conduct, before the Government of India could compass any decision, he volunteered the same night an "apology" and an "explanation." All India expected his deposition, not for his aggressive lack of respect alone, but because the Durbar incident was the culmination of a series of acts of truculent defiance extending over many years. He was saved by the gracious clemency of the Monarch he had sought to flout at the greatest assemblage India has ever witnessed; but I venture respectfully to think he was saved unwisely.

For the Gaekwar of Baroda has been in some ways a very unwholesome influence in India for the last decade or more. I have always believed his private life to be above reproach, and shall certainly not follow "One Who Knows" in discussing a case which figured in the Press on the day before the Durbar. The trouble with the Gaekwar is that his head has been turned by domestic influences, by the adulation of the Swiss hotel managers who are his chief delight, and by the folly of English neer-do-wells who are stupid enough and ignorant enough to greet him with courtesy. He has developed megalomania to such a degree that he expects kindly honours to be paid to him, and he loves to travel, because in Continental caravanserais, in Scottish country houses, and in New York drawing-rooms he can receive a full measure of incense.

NOT A GOOD RULER.

Baroda is not a great State, nor is the Gaekwar a great, or even a very good, ruler. Baroda only includes an area of 8,000 square miles. Hyderabad exceeds 80,000 square miles. The distinction between the Gaekwar and other ruling princes is that, in proportion to the area and population of his State, he exacts far more revenue from his people than any other chief in India. He has no ties of blood with his subjects, for he is a Maharatta, and they are not. There are hundreds of families in England with an infinitely longer and prouder lineage than the Gaekwar. The word "Gaekwar" means herdsman, and serves to explain the origin of a ruling house which has existed for less than two hundred years. The Gaekwar family have never been independent rulers in a sense which would warrant the absurd pretensions sometimes advanced by the present prince. The earlier Gaekwars simply held their State under the suzerainty of the Peshwa of Poona, to whom they paid tribute as feudatories. Later they became feudatories of the British Government. The Gaekwar "dynasty" has no immemorial claims, and had never been heard of when Clive was born. The "founders" gained their possessions by rapine and pillage, and the records of the State of Baroda are one long story of misgovernment until the British Raj intervened and deposed the then ruler in 1817. Had it not been for British help, the State would have been swept out of existence a century ago. The present Gaekwar is not even in the direct line of descent. He is an obscure collateral, and when the British Government chose him for high place, he was a humble little boy playing about in a remote village.

A FALSE CONCEPTION OF HIS POSITION.

It is not pleasant to have to write these things of an Indian potentate who still compares favourably with many of his fellows. It must be said that the Gaekwar has rarely been wisely handled. In his earlier years, certain British officers so flattered his vanity that he developed preposterous ideas about his position. In later years, he was, perhaps, too severely repressed. When he commenced to travel, he was quick to conclude that if he talked lofty sentiment in England and America,

PRINCIPLES OF THE SPARKLESS.

The sparkless system of wireless telegraphy of Berthoud, as explained in French reports, depends upon the lengthening of the electric waves without increasing the length of the antenna. Wireless transmission may be effected by the use of an antenna of great wave-length, requiring a current of relatively small frequency, or an antenna of small wave-length, with a current of very great frequency. Calculation shows that a wave-length of three-fifths of a mile requires 300,000 oscillations per second; one of six miles, 30,000 oscillations. The second system has been used so far, for the wave-length depends chiefly on the length of the antenna, and a wave-length of six miles would require an expensive antenna nearly a mile long. The antennae most used, employing high frequency currents, have a wave-length of not more than three miles. The frequency of ordinary industrial currents is 50 periods per second, and for the 100,000 or even 200,000 oscillations per second for the wireless delicate machines are required of enormous speeds up to 20,000 revolutions per second. Instead of these inefficient machines it has been more satisfactory to use currents of moderate frequency with oscillations greatly increased by sparks. Induction coils add to the wave-length of the new antenna, and a new generator sends double-phase current directly to the antenna without sparks.

NATURE'S WEATHER RECORD.

The annual rings of five yellow pines near Flagstaff, Ariz., have given a rainfall record extending back 500 years. A. E. Douglas has found this measure of the rain of each season to have an accuracy of more than 10 per cent., and by it a number of regular periods of rainfall variation are traced. Two wet years agreed with two years of maximum rain on the 50 years record of Southern California.

AN EXTRAORDINARY VACUUM.

The vacuum lately produced by W. Gaede—the highest on record—reached four thousand-millionths of a pound per square inch. Even at this thinness, each cubic millimeter of gas contained about 8,600,000 molecules.

AIRQUAKES.

The suggestion that there are airquakes, due to explosions of meteorites and quite independent of earthquakes and volcanoes, comes from no less an authority than W. F. Denning, the British astronomer. That such explosions are sometimes audible is well known. W. M. Foote has just recorded that a large meteorite falling near Holbrook, Ariz., at 6:30 p.m. on July 10th, 1912, broke up with a loud noise that lasted half a minute or more, and scattered over a stretch of three miles of sandy desert, more than 17,000 of the fragments—of a total weight of nearly 500 pounds—having been picked up and preserved. The exploding bodies, of course, are not always seen. A violent air-shock on the morning of November 19th caused the shaking of windows and other effects in the vicinity of Sunninghill, Eng., but could not be connected with any earthquake, and this has led to the conclusion that it was due to the explosion of a fireball high in air. The view is confirmed by the fact that astronomers recognize a few days near the middle of November as a period of detonating fireballs. Other similar instances have been recorded, and two meteorite explosions noted in 1877—on November 22nd and 23rd—were estimated to have created air disturbances more than a hundred times as violent as a loud peal of thunder.

A PARADOXICAL LOSS.

The electrification of the earth is a problem of the physicists. As stated by Dr. Geo. C. Simpson, observations from pole to pole have proven that the earth is a negatively charged sphere, and thus the flow of negative electricity into the conducting air is equivalent to a constant current of more than 1000 amperes. Yet the charge of the earth's surface remains undiminished. More positive than negative electricity is brought down by rain, etc., and no source of a return current of 1000 amperes is known and no explanation of its absence.

A NOVEL SPONGE.

The metallic sponge of M. Hannover, a Dane, has been described to the French Academy of Sciences as an alloy of lead and antimony, prepared in a sponge-like mass enclosing air spaces of varying size. Use for it is found in an absorbent of oils, resins, and similar substances.

PROPELLERS IN CANALS.

Remedies for the erosion of canals by the wash from vessels have been worked out in Germany and include a change in the shape of the canal, the use of twin propellers, and steering with two rudders. Even the moderate traffic of the first five years caused such a deposit of eroded material along the banks of the Ems-Dartmund Canal that room was not left for two boats to pass. This led to a change in canal construction, and all German canals now have their bottoms sloped down to the centre line. In a recent investigation by the Hydraulic and Shipbuilding Laboratory at Charlottenburg, a model of the Ems-Dartmund and Rhine-Canals on a scale of one-tenth has been constructed. On this model motor boats have been run, and after about 2,000 round trips it was found that tugs with one propeller gave much greater erosion than those with two. It further appeared that the minimum wearing effect was with the two propellers turned toward each other, as when more revolutions were required for the same speed. The rudder produced a very material wearing, but when two smaller rudders were substituted 1,000 voyages were made without erosion.

PLANT EXTRACTS OF NEW PROPERTIES.

Extracts of fresh plants, having the same effects on the human body as the fresh plants themselves, have been prepared by a new method by Prof. Perrot, and brought to the notice of the Paris Academy of Medicine. These extracts are quite unlike those obtained from dried plants by the usual processes. The active principles in the plant cells are fixed by treating with alcohol the sterilized powder of the freshly dried plant, the extract so made is freed from fatty matter, wax or resin, and is then dried by a special cold process.

FIREBRICK TESTS.

The melting points of various heat resisting materials have been thus determined by the United States Bureau of Standards: Fireclay brick, 2831 degrees to 3137 degrees F.; basaltic brick, 2841 degrees to 3245 degrees; chromite brick, 3722 degrees; magnesite brick, 3899 degrees; bauxite, 3303 degrees; chromite, 3955 degrees; pure alumina, 3850 degrees; pure silica, 3182 degrees. Silicon carbide, beginning to decompose at 4028 degrees, does not melt below 4882 degrees.

WHY CHAMPAGNE IS POPULAR.

THE PUREST OF WINES.

Champagne increases in popularity every year. It has long ceased to be regarded as ostentation; it has almost ceased to be accepted as a luxury. To many it has become a necessity, and by doctors it is regarded as the best medicine in the world.

"People are at last understanding how to drink champagne," said Mr. Constant Martens, the representative of the great house of St. Marcoux, to a Standard representative, which prides itself on maintaining a constant stock in its cellars at Rheims of over three and a-half million bottles—thirty-six vaults in the deep chalk cellars, each vault containing 100,000 bottles. Champagne should never be taken with fruit or sweets; it should be served with the joint, after having been cooled in an ice pail, and sipped slowly and gratefully, not tossed off in bumpers. It is true, however, "that not one champagne drinker in a thousand can tell one brand from another, and perhaps the reason is that nearly every champagne has been made to suit it. The St. Marcoux wine is an exception, and that is perhaps the reason why it is such a favourite wine with ladies. It is the pure juice of the grape only, which is in no sense manufactured. Nature makes our wine, and all we do is to preserve its purity. A certain amount of sugar is added; but the brut wine is entirely free from saccharine matter."

"Of course, readers know that now by the laws of France every label and cork must have the word 'Champagne' on it; that, at least, is a guarantee that it comes from the district vineyards, the small bit of country bounded by the towns of Rheims, Epernay, and Châlons. The wine itself owes its sparkle, its peculiar qualities, to the influence of the soil, a stratum of chalk descending to a great depth, and covered with a thin layer of vegetable soil. No other part of the world can produce champagne, not even any other part of France; but the vineyard of Champagne can supply all the sparkling wine the world requires. There are three divisions of the Champagne district—the first being the hills of Verzenay, Sillery, Mailly, Reims, and Bouzy. The second and third divisions are on either side of the River Marne, on the left Aÿ and Cramant, on the right Hautvillers, Pérignon, and Aÿ. All these vineyards work as a community for a common object—to produce a perfect wine. The freshness and body of Verzenay, the softness of Bouzy, the delicacy of Cramant, the bouquet of Aÿ must all be combined to produce a wine which in one glass contains all the wonders of the Champagne country. Many people take less trouble in making their daughters than the Champenois do in marrying their vines. It is the study of blending that constitutes the science of champagne making."

"It is a sin to pollute champagne with brandy, a wine which in its pure state was drunk by the Emperor Charlemagne. It has always been the great industry of the Westminister of France—Rheims—and fostered by its bishops and its religious communities. Everyone who has visited the amazingly beautiful cathedral will remember the grapes and vine leaves which appear everywhere in its carvings and the vintner with his cask among the sculptured saints over the north door. Champagne is the true Christmas and Christian wine."

ANGIER'S EMULSION

"A HOUSEHOLD REMEDY FOR CHEST COMPLAINTS."

The Vicarage, South Benfleet.
Dear Sir—Several years ago, while suffering from an obstinate attack of bronchitis, and after being rendered exceedingly uncomfortable by the prolonged and regular use of creosote, I was advised to try Angier's Emulsion, which I did, with the result that it gave speedy relief and clearance. Since then I have rarely been without this excellent remedy in the Vicarage. I have recommended it to many of my parishioners, with the result that it is now used in many homes as a household remedy for throat and chest complaints.

A Lay Preacher

Brain Fog, Nervous Exhaustion—

Just a change of opinion was enough to give Mr. W. King his present prosperity, for he realised in the nick of time that his way was not curing his brain fog and nervous exhaustion, so he tried the Phosferine way. Mr. King's method was to ignore his despondency and feeling of collapse, and persuade himself there was nothing unusual in the painful fatigue the lightest effort to work cost him, until, as he steadily got worse, he resolved to drop his own opinion and see what Phosferine could do. The result was so astonishingly beneficial, even after a few doses, that the brain fog and nervous exhaustion ceased entirely, enabling him to do more work than before and yet not feel the strain. This remarkable advantage is seen in the extraordinary energy and vigour of Mr. King's public speaking, and so amazingly have his prospects improved since his speedy recovery, that he declares he had to come forward with the evidence of the magnificent benefit he derived from Phosferine.

Quite Gone—Never Return.

Mr. W. J. King, School House, Trumpington Rd., Forest Gate, London, E., writes:—"I am writing to add my name to the list of those people who have found Phosferine to be the Greatest of all Tonics. Some time back I was very much run down through overstrain brought on by incessant bodily exercise and mental application. The usual tendency of mankind is to give up some of their work, have a rest, and at the same time take medicine, so I endeavoured to keep going on without seeking advice, but as I was getting worse I found that policy would not do. Having heard many friends speak about Phosferine, and one in particular offering me some, I decided to give it a trial. Purchasing a 2/6 bottle, I began to doctor myself. The result not only astonished me, but others also noticed how much better I was, even although I had only taken a few doses. I found I could do the same amount of work easier, and at present am able to do more than before and yet not feel the strain. I have a good deal of public speaking, and I find an occasional dose of Phosferine is a great benefit."—May 28, 1912.

LIFE WITHOUT HEALTH IS LIVING DEATH.

VETARZO BRAIN AND NERVE FOOD

This remarkable compound, the latest discovery of modern times, is without equal in all cases of defective nerve and brain power, whether induced by worry, overwork, dissipation, or other influences. Stupor, paralysis, palpitation, defective circulation, nervous dyspepsia, the neurasthenia, low spirits, mental and bodily prostration, want of confidence, general debility, premature decay or deficiency of the vital forces, loss of vitality, harassing dreams, restlessness that can settle to nothing, irritability of temper, female complaints, hysteria, backache, bearing down sensations, wasting diseases, constipation, neuralgia, migrain, high-coloured water, &c., are all so many different phases of brain and nerve weakness and exhaustion, the cause of by far the greater portion of the misery, ill-health, and despondency by which we are confronted on every hand, that can only be successfully combated by the use of this wonderful and highly scientific preparation. Bracing up the system generally, it gives tone to the exhausted nerves, arrests all weakening wasting discharges, restores the falling energies, and imparts new life and vigour to those who have too recently seemed played out, used up and valueless. Bottle Price 2s. 6d.

WITHOUT PURE BLOOD HEALTH IS IMPOSSIBLE.
VETARZO BLOOD MEDICINE

Never before was there anything like it, nor can its marvellous properties ever be equaled in all cases of poverty, impurity, or other imperfection of the blood from whatever cause arising. No sooner is it introduced into the system than it permeates and penetrates to the minutest capillaries, overcoming and expelling disease, wherever and in whatever form met with; removing all blotches, pimples, scurs, scurvy, eruptions and glandular swellings, discolourations, ringworms and unsightly patches, &c. Its effects are almost magical in the treatment of gout, rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago, pains and swellings of the joints, discharges, blood poison, eczema, lepra, psoriasis, bad legs, bad breasts, abscesses, ulcers, wounds, sores, gonorrhoea, venereal taint, &c. It improves the general health, and quickly removes long-standing bronchitis, asthma, and hacking cough, spasmic cough, too often the precursor of consumption. Bottle Price 2s. 6d.

LEVER BROTHERS' CONCESSIONS.

THE SIERRA LEONE RIGHTS.

Mr. Fred Hall, in the House of Commons, on January 18th, asked the Secretary for the Colonies if the application of Messrs. Lever Brothers, Limited, for certain trading concessions in Sierra Leone was first addressed to the Governor of that colony, and, being refused, transferred to the Colonial Office; if the concessions had now been granted in a form slightly different to the original application; the nature and duration of the concessions; and the terms obtained therefor.

Mr. Lewis Harcourt, in reply, said: The application of Messrs. Lever for certain rights in Sierra Leone was first addressed to the Colonial Office. The concessions were granted in a different form, as appears in the correspondence recently presented to Parliament.

Mr. Hall asked if the concession was put up to public tender.

Mr. Harcourt said: No; it never has been the custom.

Mr. Rupert Gwynne asked if any correspondence passed between the Colonial Office and Messrs. Lever Brothers or their representatives between July 10th, 1908, and October 31st, 1908, and, if so, would he give a copy of it.

Mr. Harcourt: If, as I presume, the hon. member refers to correspondence as to concessions in West Africa the answer is in the negative.

Mr. Gwynne also asked whether it is intended in future, before granting concessions in Sierra Leone, to publish particulars in the Government Gazette three months before ratification; and, if so, why this was not done before granting a concession to Messrs. Lever Brothers extending over an area of 189,300 acres.

Mr. Harcourt: The answer to the first part of the question is in the affirmative. In regard to the second part, the application of Messrs. Lever was the first of its kind. Legislation was necessary before effect could be given to it, and the proceedings in connection with such legislation were then regarded as sufficient publication.

Mr. Gwynne asked if the publication was only made after the contract was entered into, and when it was too late for any other firm to compete.

Mr. Harcourt: I do not think it was after the contract was entered into, but it was after the proposal was first made. Obviously it could not have been made earlier.

Mr. Gwynne: If it was not necessary to publish it in the Gazette for three months before the arrangements were made, why is it necessary now?

Mr. Harcourt: The whole thing is quite new. I think a three months' publication is a desirable improvement.

Mr. Gwynne next asked if the Colonial Secretary would give a copy of the draft Ordinance which was prepared at the Colonial Office and forwarded to the Governor of the Gold Coast, on May 2nd, 1912, relating to the proposed grant of concessions in connection with the question of oil mills and developing machinery.

Mr. Harcourt: The draft Ordinance has already been presented to Parliament.

Mr. Gwynne further asked why the following letters had been omitted from the correspondence published by the Colonial Office respecting the grant of exclusive rights for the extraction of oil from palm fruit, viz.: Letter dated October 25th, 1907, from Messrs. Lever Brothers to the Colonial Office; letter dated August 31st, 1910, from the Colonial Office to Messrs. Lever Brothers; and letter dated October 14th, 1909, from Messrs. Simpson, North, Harley & Co. to the Colonial Office; and would he have copies of these letters laid upon the table of the House.

Mr. Harcourt: I included all material papers in the correspondence presented to Parliament. The letters referred to by the hon. member are of no importance, and not worth the cost of publication; but I will hand them to the hon. member, and leave him to be the judge in the matter. If he wishes it they shall be printed.

TELEPATHIC SUICIDE.

STRANGE STORY OF SISTERS' RESOLVE.

A curious case of what is described as telepathy with a suicide is being discussed in Geneva.

Some people attending the Saleve by the funicular were startled to see an elderly woman walk to a ledge overlooking a ravine 400ft. deep. She wrapped a shawl round her head and jumped over the precipice. The victim, so it was afterwards discovered, was a widow named Mrs. Simon, who had been greatly distressed because a younger sister, with whom she had lived, had for the last five months been a patient in a Geneva hospital.

Here, says the Chronicle correspondent, is the curious feature of the tragedy. The news of the suicide did not become generally known in Geneva for several hours; but at about the time of the tragedy the woman in hospital declared to the nurse that her sister was dead, and she did not wish to survive her.

In the nurse's absence she threw herself from the ward window into the street, and was so severely injured that she is not expected to recover.

So far as is known, no written communication had passed between the two sisters for a fortnight.

CURIOUS INCIDENT.

On the arrival of the B. I. steamer Ellena at Rangoon from the Straits at 8 a.m. on the 4th instant, a curious incident occurred in the smoking room of the vessel, where the first class passengers assembled to declare any dutiable goods.

In the course of the examination of baggage Mr. Thayer, an American tourist, produced a revolver and placed it on the table. He was asked to say if he had any cartridges for the weapon and informed the Customs officer that the only cartridges he had were in the weapon, which was loaded. One of the Customs officers picked up the pistol from the table and, in examining it, must accidentally have pressed the trigger. The revolver went off, the bullet passing between two persons who were seated on one of the benches in the room and lodging itself in the woodwork of the staircase leading down from the smoking room. The American remarked that he had had the weapon for twenty years, and had never discharged it in all his life. The cartridges were then removed.

THE DIGNITY OF BUSINESS.

A new practical scheme generally for raising the dignity of business and particularly for opening business careers to public school and university men is outlined and very persuasively urged by Mr. H. E. Morgan, who can speak with experience, in this month's Review of Reviews. The idea is to establish a central bureau with an advisory board of business men and educational authorities which would have a double effect. It would help to give the business community an appreciation of the quality of men educated at public schools and it would open the eyes of schoolmasters and dons to the honourable scope offered by business and commerce to men of high education and character who had some special training.

It is beyond argument that hundreds of our best men adopt formal and mechanical professions and dwarf their capacities by settling at once into an official groove because it is the tradition of their schools and of their class to neglect if not to despise business. If on leaving a university they reject this tradition they find themselves unequipped for striking out a career, solely for want of a few necessary but quite small items of knowledge and facts of experience. This slight educational deficiency is continually baulking the excellent employments bureau established at Oxford, which has made the first step towards Mr. Morgan's ideal. How many fine openings have been there lost for want of a little more glossiness in French, a modicum of acquaintance with Spanish, or a more practical knowledge of science. We turn out from our schools and universities the best Civil Servants in the world. The excellence of these products, in spite of some "competition-wallahs," is indisputable. But the Empire was made not by Civil Servants but by men of business, adventurers in the finer sense of the word, many of them men of great imagination and high ideals. British business requires imagination and character as much as ever it did. The German and American nations—one may add the Japanese—are sending into commerce the very pick of their citizens, while we are deliberately and traditionally "teaching boys and young men of these classes from whom we may expect higher intelligence and inherited ability to despise business." That is the gravamen of the charge; and in spite of promising exceptions it is a true charge. The higher the personnel of the business community the better for the nation. If, says the Daily Mail, Mr. Morgan's bureau can improve this, it will do national work of the highest utility.

For years past it has been the constant endeavour of scientists to produce an Incandescent Electric Lamp which would combine Efficiency with Mechanical strength.

This has at last been achieved in the Philips "PHOBUS" Lamp, which equals in efficiency the best types of Metallic Filament Lamps hitherto made, but without their drawback of Fragility.

Call at our Office, 14, Des Voeux Rd., and see the "PHOBUS" being knocked about and tested for Efficiency. Then ask the Price.
